PJ Library

JEWISH BEDTIME STORIES and SONGS

PJ Library is a fantastic program where children, from ages 6 months to 8 years, can receive a free Jewish book every month. This program is proudly brought to us by United Jewish Federation of the Mohawk Valley. Children throughout the Mohawk Valley look forward to getting that blue and white envelope in the mail each month. The mailings have included books, CDs, recipes and even simple games to play at the holiday table.

I have been the PJ Library Professional for little over a year now. My children love their PJ Library books and we read them over and over again. I just had our annual Rosh Hashanah event for kids. This year it was a PJ Painting party. An artist from BB Designs came to lead us in our painting. Many children and their families came to create a beautiful apple print painting with L'Shanah Tovah written in the middle. We also read a couple of PJ Library books, the children won door prizes and we enjoyed pizza at the end. The event was so successful that another one is being planned for December.

This past month our PJ Library program has grown! Our community is now a member of PJ Our Way or PJOW. PJOW extends the age of which children can receive books from PJ. Now children can get books up through age 11. This is phenomenal for us and we are very excited to be a part of it. After finishing PJ Library at age 8, families can sign up for PJOW online and each month children will be able to choose from 4 different books and decide which they would like that month. This program will be available to families at the beginning of October. There will be more information posted.

A Message from Cantor Socolof

Towards the middle of last month, we read parshat Shoftim. In the third Aliyah, we read that before going to battle, the military officers are to address the soldiers and declare to them:

> "What man is there who has built a new house and has not [yet] inaugurated it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the war, and another man inaugurate it. And what man is there who has planted a vineyard, and has not [yet] redeemed it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the war, and another man redeem it. And what man is there who has betrothed a woman and has not [yet] taken her? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the war, and another man take her." And the officers shall continue to speak to the people and say, "What man is there who is fearful and fainthearted? Let him go and return to his house, that he should not cause the heart of his brothers to melt, as his heart."

We notice immediately that the first three categories are centered around the individual and how tragic it would be if such a fate were to befall him. The fourth, on the other hand, is focused more on communal well-being. We seek to protect the group from the potentially detrimental influence of one who is not whole-heartedly committed to the task. One might argue that the first three and the fourth are of a piece; in all of these a soldier might be sufficiently distracted that they do not bring their full dedication. Most commentators, noticing the division in the description contend that they are of different natures.

Rashi, though, cites an interesting difference of opinion between two of the sages. Rabbi Akiva says the verse means what it says; it refers to one who cannot stand in formation and look at a drawn sword. Rabbi Jose the Galilean (who you may remember from the Hagadah) says that it refers to a soldier who fears that his sins are so great that he will die in battle. The Torah gives him the first three reasons as cover for retreating from battle so that he need not be embarrassed in public by his return.

Not shaming someone in public is actually one of the 613 mitzvoth. The Talmud suggests (Baba Metzia 58b) that one who embarrasses another in public is comparable to a murderer. In fact, the Talmud says that the punishment for embarrassing others is that you receive no portion in the World to Come. This is a serious mitzvah, and its import should be obvious.

So what does this have to do with the High Holidays? You may, from time to time, have wondered why on Yom Kippur we all recite the stunningly comprehensive list of sins in the liturgy. I rather think that few (if any) of us have the koach, much less the opportunity, to have committed even close to all of them. So why do all of us recite them together?

It is to save those who may have committed sins from embarrassment. One of the established steps in making teshuvah is to publicly confess one's sin. If we had to only recite the passages that relates to the sins we know we have committed, our shame in having to confess in front of our community would be, perhaps, too much to bear. So all of us recite every sin, with each knowing which s/he is atoning for, and which are not. This simple device allows us to avoid the shame that would accrue under other circumstances.

As we embrace and celebrate this new year of 5777, Vicki and I wish for all of you a year of health, happiness, prosperity and growth in the Torah. May this be the year when we become our best selves. Shannah Tovah Um'tukah (A happy and sweet year).

Temple Beth El President's Message

Mazel Tov to Bozhena and the entire Samoshuk Family on her Bat Mitzvah! We had a wonderfully warm weekend. We thank you for sharing your nachos with us.

I would like to share the following story with you:

Rabbi Shimon Bar Yochai (who lived in the 2nd century CE in the Holy Land) was possibly the holiest man that ever lived. Besides authoring the 'Zohar', being a master of the oral Torah and a miracle worker, he was one of the few Jews in history who spent every instant of his time learning Torah; no casual conversations, coffee breaks and certainly no vacations--only Torah. So everyone was surprised when, the day after Rosh Hashanah (Jewish New Year's Day) he showed up at the door of his nephews' home and began to lecture them about the importance of giving charity to the poor. Although they didn't really have money to spare and totally didn't understand the urgency of what he was saying, they listened attentively; when Rabbi Shimon spoke everyone listened. "Give with an open hand," Rabbi Shimon adjured. "Don't worry about tomorrow, G-d will provide. And most important: write it all down. Every penny you give, write it down and carry the list with you at all times. I want to see a big sum at the end of the year. "Rabbi Shimon made them promise and he left .Almost a year later they had another strange visit--from a posse of Roman soldiers with an order for their arrest. Someone accused them of selling silk without paying the tax to the government. They began weeping and protesting their innocence but to no avail. Trembling with fear, they were led off to prison where they were given a choice: either pay an outrageous fine of six hundred dinar or produce an even more outrageously priced silk garment for the king, both of which were utterly beyond their means. When Rabbi Shimon heard what had happened he immediately rushed to the prison and got special permission to visit his relatives. "Where is the account of the charity you gave?" He asked. "How much did you give? "Here," they replied as one of them pulled the small parchment from his pocket Rabbi Shimon took the account and noticed that they had given almost six hundred dinar; they were just six dinar short. "Do you have any money with you?" he asked. They produced six dinar that they had sewn into their garments in case they needed it. Rabbi Shimon took the money, bribed one of the officials, the charges were dropped and they were released. Rabbi Shimon explained to them what had happened. "This past Rosh Hashanah I dozed off and dreamt that the government would demand of you six hundred dinars. That is why I told you to give charity, to negate the decree."" Then why didn't you tell us about that?" they complained. "We would have given the money immediately and spared ourselves a lot of anguish." "But then," replied Rabbi Shimon. "You wouldn't have done the mitzvah for its own sake." (From Midrash Rabbah, Vayikrah 34:12)

Wishing everyone a healthy and happy new year, Marsha

Temple Beth El
Executive Director's Message

Dear Friends,

This bulletin falls at Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur – we celebrate Rosh Hashanah, a time of gentleness and reflection on the past year, giving thought to what changes we would like to make and how we can achieve what we aspire to.

After a solemn but festive Rosh Hashanah we will observe Yom Kippur; the holiest day of the year, a day completely devoted to spiritual needs. We hope our fast will be easy and uneventful and our reading of the prayers in the Mahzar will encourage us to face our short comings as we look to always live a better life.

May we all be inscribed in the Book of Life for a good sweet and healthy year.

L'Shanah Tova

Thank You

Evgenii and Tatiana Samoshuk would like to thank their friends Aliza and Stan Gerstein, Cecily Eidelhoch, Mundy and Stan Shapiro, Lois and Michael Silverman, Marsha Silverman, Rae and Stephen Rosenfeld and Ann and Norm Siegel for hosting the Oneg for Bozhena's Bat Mitzvah.

Thank You

We would like to thank everyone that came and shared our special day with us as our daughter Bozhena became a Bat Mitzvah. We appreciate all your good wishes and support. Special thanks to our friends who made this day come true.

With gratitude,
Evgenii and Tatiana Samoshuk

Oreo Ice Cream Sandwich Cake
No Bake

One of the best things about this recipe is that it can be made up to a week (or a little more) in advance of an event and keeps until it is all gone, so there is no waste. However it won't last long.

You can make this cake in any size you want; an 8 X 8 pan, a loaf pan, a 9 X 13 or even larger, just double or triple the recipe.

Ingredients: for the 8 X 8:

- 12 Ice cream sandwiches (chocolate and vanila or neopolatin can be used if you are a chocolate and strawberry fan)
- 16 Oreos (about 2 cups chopped up – divide in half set aside)
- 1 Container Cool Whip Topping - 8 ounce
- 1 box chocolate pudding
- Hot Fudge and/or Caramel Topping - 1/2 cup each
- Magic Shell Topping

Preparation:

Line an 8 X 8 pan with foil (or size

Whisk ½ cup fudge topping into 1 cup Cool Whip until blended. Add dry pudding mix and stir for 2 minutes. Stir in 1 cup chopped Oreos.

Assembly:

- Arrange 4 ice cream sandwiches in the 8 X 8 pan. (Cut if necessary)
- Cover with half of the pudding cool whip mixture. Repeat a second time.
- Top with the remaining ice cream sandwiches.

Hint: Freeze for an hour or two if the ice cream started to get a little soft.

Finish

- Frost with the remaining plain Cool Whip.
- Top the Cool Whip with the remaining chopped Oreos and drizzle Magic Shell over the top.
- Freeze for at least 4 hours before serving.
