Message from Cantor Socolof

In Mesechet Shabbat, the Baylonian Talmud is discussing rules pertaining to making the Shabbat candles when it digresses into a discussion of lighting the candles for Chanukah. It is in the course of this discussion that the Talmud asks: M'e'i Chanukah? What is Chanukah? It is a question that most of us confront at one time or another.

Like so many questions, it has far more than just one answer. The Talmud explains that it is the commemoration of the miracle of the oil. We also know it as a celebration of the victory of the Hasmoneans over the forces of Antiochus who sought to impose a state religion upon our ancestors. To many children, Chanukah is an occasion to receive a lot of presents (I am not so old that I have forgotten that). Some see it as the Jewish iteration of the Winter Solstice Festival, a phenomenon common to many cultures. There are many others.

So, what is Chanukah? It is many of these things (although by no means all of them...it is not, for example, the Jewish Christmas). By rights, Chanukah is a fairly minor holiday on our calendar. We say Hallel, add the Al haNissim to the Amidah and Birkat Hamazon, and light the candles. That's about it so far as sanctioned observance goes.

To a very real extent, Chanukah is what we choose it to be; it is what we make it. We might light the menorah at home, say the blessings, and be content in having fulfilled the mitzvah of the candles. We might gather with others at the synagogue to celebrate the beginning of Chanukah. We might spend time and money procuring gifts for children and others in our lives. We might choose to celebrate gastronomically, by focusing on latkes and tzufganiyot (jelly donuts). We might also do a series of combinations of these activities.

What Chanukah is to us will be reflected by how we decide to observe it. Just as the way our families observed the holiday served as a model and template for our own attitudes and practice, so our approach to the holiday will inform those for whom we provide the introduction.

I encourage you to celebrate Chanukah fully and joyfully. Let's play with a dreidel and have a little (!) fried food. Let's light our menorahs prominently so that we publicize the miracle. Let us remember that the miracle was not just the oil found in the Temple. It was the victory over a greater armed force. It was in the restoration and rededication of the Temple. It was the persistence of Judaism in the face of its many enemies over the years. Let us celebrate this. Then it may be said of us as it was said of our ancestors, —~~But~~ for all of the children of Israel, there was light in their dwellings."

Cantor Kal Socolof

Temple Beth El President's Message

By the time you read this, the potatoes have been peeled and the latkes are ready to be served at the Chanukah dinner. It takes many people to get ready for this event and I would like to thank each and everyone who helped prepare for this dinner.

On December 10th, the TBE religious school will celebrate Chanukah with the residents of the Sitrin Home. Please join us for the festivities at the Community Building from 4-5:30PM.

A special thank you to Aliza Gerstein, Larry Marks, Irwin Rosen, and Michael Silverman for stepping up to the Bimah for Shabbat services while Cantor Kal Socolof attended a yearly conference.

We do not have many fundraisers for Temple. Please consider ordering gift cards from the list you see in the Temple Times. The gift cards are like a debit card and what you pay is what you get. Temple makes a percentage from the companies that offer the gift card. Who could ask for more? One stop shopping and less hassles thinking what to buy!

You are always welcome to join us for our short morning minyans. When someone needs to say Kaddish, you would be performing a mitzvah.

Happy Chanukah to you and yours!

Shalom to all,
Marsha

Temple Beth El

Executive Director's Message

This year Chanukah is just 10 days after Thanksgiving, both holidays are known for wonderful eating, from turkey to potato latkes and jelly donuts – what a good start to our celebrations.

We celebrate Chanukah at home and at Temple. Chanukah is the Hebrew word for dedication – the Israelis are called Modern Macabees, whose courage and dedication made possible the Miracle of the Jewish State.

We celebrate this lovely festival by lighting the menorah, sharing gifts for the children, playing dreidel, feasting on potato latkes, with sour cream and apple sauce. In Israel it is traditional to eat sufganiot – jelly donuts. We review the story of the Macabees and the rededication of the Temple with the crude of oil expected to last one day, which lasted eight days.

Let us enjoy this holiday season with our family and friends. Let us remember to count our blessings for the good in our lives and the opportunity we have to bring good into the lives of others. Let us do what Jews have always done, rededicate ourselves to do the best for others whatever the deed may be – the return is always greater than the deeds themselves.

Happy Chanukah to one and all,
Mundy

Like a Tree

Shared by Kaila Shabat

Out of days of darkness and profound despair,
I re-emerge to a wan sun,
to trees barren and bare.

Yet, deep within, sap is rising;
a new cycle of life beginning.
Limpid buds linger in the bough for the sun's signal to unfurl their foliage and confer
a plethora of flowers and fruit.

As at dawn, the first chirp swells to a chorus of bird song, so the players in the symphony of the coming spring enter the arena, one by one,
to enact Nature's pageant.

On this New Year of Trees, man, too, like a tree in the field,
quicken with insight and renewal emulating the awakening earth.
